

inclusion

... inclusive and child friendly education should be seen as:

- An approach to whole school improvement that will ensure that national strategies for 'Education for All' are really for all;
- A means of ensuring that all children receive quality care and education in their home communities as part of early child development, pre-school, primary and secondary education programmes, particularly those who are currently excluded from mainstream education or vulnerable to marginalisation and exclusion; and
- A contribution to the development of a society that respects and values the individual differences of all citizens.
